

New Red Bull Arena draws closer to completion

RIVERBEND
Harrison, NJ District

The future home of the New York Red Bulls is quickly making progress towards its opening for the first MLS match on March 27, 2010 against conference rival, the Chicago Fire. Vertical construction of the open air arena began just over a year ago and on April 14, 2009, the Red Bulls held a "topping off" ceremony with the final piece of steel bolted into place. The field's drainage and heating systems have been installed, the last layers of dirt and gravel are spread and the Kentucky Bluegrass field will be laid down this month. The north and south end roof panel installation is complete and the East and West panels are nearing completion.

Easily accessible by public transportation and located in a diverse soccer hotbed, Red Bull Arena is expected to be one of the premier venues of its kind in the United States. With seats as close as seven yards from the touchline and located underneath a dynamic 360-degree roof, Red Bull Arena will be the ultimate sporting experience for soccer and casual fans alike. "The redevelopment of this significant property into a vibrant, mixed-use destination is of critical importance to the Town of Harrison in meeting its goals of enhanced economic development and improved quality of life for all residents," stated Harrison Mayor Raymond McDonough. "We are extremely pleased to have a developer as committed and experienced as Advance Realty leading the effort," the mayor added.

As a transit-oriented community, the Riverbend District is within close proximity to multiple modes of mass transit, including N.J. Transit, Amtrak and a centrally located, onsite PATH station that will benefit from a $180 million renovation program to improve service, allowing easy access to Newark Penn Station. The district is also only 15 minutes by train to Manhattan, is highly accessible by all major roadways in Northern New Jersey, and is just minutes from Newark Liberty International Airport via rail service or car.
